

We have thousands of customers we fax (back and forth) on a regular basis. Within these customers we often have dozens of individuals on multiple fax machines. This proposed regulation would be a disaster. Compliance would be a paper work nighmare, it would cost us tens of thousands in lost productivity . . . and for what benefit? Those of us serving the manufacturing sector are still in the middle of a painful recession. Can't the FCC focus on something that would reduce the cost or improve the ease of doing bussiness?
